Criteria and weighting	Level	Comments:
Knowledge and understanding of the topic/ issues under consideration (30%)	Very Good	A good introduction which identifies your audience. There is a comment regarding research approaches; this is brief and so do remember when you move onto your final dissertation [which obviously has a higher word count] you will need to expand on your intended research methodology much more. The content is solid and well researched, it does however feel as though the assignment is split into two discussions; the methodology of students learning online and how this impacts different students, and then examining security issues surrounding this. For future, focus on one discussion in the Literature Review and thoroughly underpin that one subject. Generally, knowledge and understanding demonstrated is of a very good standard, [just bear the above in mind moving forward]
Criticality (30%)	Very Good	There is an emerging critical tone in your writing style, which develops as the assignment developments. Generally, very good discussion, debate and comparison of facts. For example; effective discussion regarding learning styles around e-learning and how those who learn and interaction in particular manners may or may not benefit from e-learning. You apply theory to practice and it is clear that planning has gone into developing the assignment. Continue with this approach moving forward.
Use of relevant sources (20%)	Very Good	Very good use of relevant resources. Citation occurs regularly, it is clear that appropriate research has taken place and there is an appropriate list of references to support your discussion. Continue with unit reading and developing your own research as you continue through the module.
Structure and Presentation (as detailed in the assessment guidance)	Excellent	The assignment is presented to a generally excellent standard, just a few points to consider. Some of your paragraphs are a little dense and so do break your longer paragraphs down. Good to see an extensive list of references, but put them on their own page, at the end of assignment, [and so the list of references should start

(10%)		after the assignment is complete, but completely on their own page].
Academic integrity (10%)	Very Good	The assignment is within word count, and this is good practice. Your academic tone gathers strength as the assignment develops. Some of the initial discussion didn't flow as effectively regarding some of the syntax and sentence structure, but the assignment does then hit its stride. I would advise one more proofread prior to final upload to ascertain if there is complete consistency in your writing style. Academic writing can be challenging, but does get easier the more that you engage with it. A very good genuine attempt regarding your writing style here. Only use speech marks if a quote is occurring. If you are using a quote ensure that a citation takes place before or after the quotation in every instance. In the conclusion to you add a couple more questions at the end of the Literature Review. Moving forward, just focus on answering the question for your assignment, don't introduce new questions. Overall, a very good observation regarding academic integrity.
Overall
Positives: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Overall, a very good outcome regarding the Literature Review</li> <li>• Excellent presentation of the document</li> <li>• Clear engagement regarding the module generally, asking appropriate questions and then using responses to autonomously develop your formative and summative</li> </ul>
Points for development: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Stick to one clear discussion in the Literature Review, either; security within e-learning or learning experiences within e-learning</li> <li>• Work on consistency in your academic writing style</li> <li>• Continue to develop your research regarding unit materials and own research</li> </ul>
