Feedback for RRMP Literature Review [Formative]

The formative is laid out to a very good standard, with many academic conventions followed; for example font style, size, line and paragraph spacing. This is very good practice. Just ensure that your list of references is also font size 12 for the final summative.

Although this is only a formative hand in, it would have been beneficial to add the subject title as a header to the formative, as it is important for the viewer to know precisely what the subject matter is about. Please remember to do this for your summative. Also remember to add a title page to your summative [with the module, assignment title, your name and student number on for example].

Be mindful of repeating words in short order, [and so the word institutions was used several times in relatively short succession, and so proof-read and ensure that repetition is broken up].

E-learning is a very topical and current subject and you should be able to get some effective discussion in your summative assignment from this subject matter. I would advise to do some deep research to really draw the subject out so that the final summative itself isn't repetitive in nature. That deeper research will also allow effective debate and discussion to take place in the final summative.

With best wishes
